ALI SALEEM BEY, et al.,
Plaintiffs,
v.
CITY OF OAKLAND,
Defendant.

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF CALIFORNIA

Case No. 14-cv-01626-JSC

ORDER RE: MOTION FOR JUDGMENT ON THE PLEADINGS

Re: Dkt. No. 33

Plaintiffs Ali Saleem Bey and John Muhammed Bey, proceeding pro se, bring this action against the City of Oakland (“Defendant”). In the Second Amended Complaint (“SAC”), Plaintiffs allege numerous civil rights violations by the Oakland Police Department (“OPD”) and its officers, generally contending that the OPD failed to adequately investigate Plaintiffs’ internal affairs division complaints due to racial and religious discrimination against Plaintiffs as members of the Black Muslim community. (Dkt. No. 15.) Now pending before the Court is Defendant’s motion for judgment on the pleadings pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 12(c). (Dkt. No. 33.) Having considered the parties’ submissions, and having had the benefit of oral argument on December 3, 2015, the Court GRANTS Defendant’s motion.

BACKGROUND

I. Factual Background

The following background is taken from the factual allegations in the SAC and the documents attached thereto.<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup> When considering a 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss, a court does not normally look beyond the complaint. See Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6); see also Ramirez v. United Airlines, Inc., 416 F. Supp. 2d 792, 795 (N.D. Cal. 2005) (“[M]aterials outside the pleadings ordinarily are not considered on a motion to dismiss[.]”). However, courts may consider documents alleged in a complaint and

1 Plaintiffs are “businessmen, family men and community leaders in the Oakland Black and 2 Muslim community.” The causes of action in the SAC arise out of OPD’s investigations into the 3 attempted murder of Plaintiff John Muhammed Bey, both Plaintiffs’ requests for protection and 4 assistance regarding the murder of Waajid Bey—a “close associate” of Plaintiffs and fellow 5 member of the Oakland Black Muslim community—and the OPD’s short shrift, at best, and 6 complete disregard, at worst, of each Plaintiffs’ requests for OPD internal investigations.
7 According to Plaintiffs, they repeatedly brought these systemic failures to the attention of OPD 8 officers, the chief of police, and the Oakland mayor’s office, but no action was taken for years. To 9 the contrary, only when Plaintiffs relayed their evidence to the compliance director appointed to 10 oversee the OPD did the Department re-open an investigation into Plaintiffs’ complaints. This 11 investigation resulted in a finding that the OPD had violated its own policies and failed to 12 investigate, which Plaintiffs contend is evidence of violations of their civil rights.

13 In 2002 an OPD officer brought an employment discrimination suit against OPD claiming 14 that other officers wrongly believed that he was a Black Muslim. (Dkt. No. 15 ¶ IV.Y.) As part of 15 that case, the officer identified OPD officers who were hostile to Black Muslims in the workplace.
16 (Id.)

17 Specifically, in 2003 OPD requested federal resources from the FBI to designate and 18 investigate Plaintiffs and their family members as “Domestic Terrorists.” (Id. ¶ IV.) As a result, 19 OPD targeted Plaintiffs’ businesses, including Ali Saleem Bey’s Nile Valley Industries, John

21 essential to a plaintiff’s claim. See Branch v. Tunnell, 14 F.3d 449, 454 (9th Cir. 1994); Steckman
22 v. Hart Brewing, Inc., 143 F.3d 1293, 1295 (9th Cir. 1998). A court may also “take judicial notice 23 of documents on which allegations in the complaint necessarily rely, even if not expressly 24 referenced in the complaint, provided that the authenticity of those documents is not in dispute[,]”
Tercica, Inc. v. Insmed Inc., No. C 05-5027 SBA, 2006 WL 1626930, at *8 (N.D. Cal. June 9, 25 2006) (emphasis in original), and may take judicial notice of matters of public record, Coto
26 Settlement v. Eisenberg, 593 F.3d 1031, 1038 (9th Cir. 2010). Here, Plaintiffs did not submit a 27 request for judicial notice, but nevertheless submitted along with his opposition to the motion to 28 dismiss a number of documents that were not attached to or referenced in the complaint. (See Dkt.
No. 47 at 35-36 (including exhibits labeled “Exhibit JTTF Complicity,” “Exhibit Hate,” “Exhibit
Culturalized Bias,” “Exhibit Unequal,” “Exhibit 9XX,” “Exhibit 68 COINTELPRO racial Vendetta,” “Exhibit COINTELPRO,” “Exhibit D,” “Exhibit: JMB Case Witness,” “Exhibit I.D.,” “Exhibit JTTF,” and an untitled exhibit that is a newspaper article describing Yusuf Bey 4th’s arrest.).) The Court therefore declines to consider the exhibits offered for the first time in Plaintiffs’ supplemental opposition.

1 Muhammed Bey's U.D. Security Services, and Your Black Muslim Bakery, owned by Plaintiffs'
2 close personal friend and associate Waajid Bey. (Id. ¶¶ IV, IV.A.)

3 On February 1, 2004 Waajid Bey was kidnapped, beaten to death, and buried in a shallow 4 grave in the Oakland Hills, where a hiker discovered his body six months later. (Id. ¶¶ IV.A, 5 IV.D.) On March 1, 2004, Plaintiffs filed a missing persons report. (Id. ¶ IV.B.) By April 1, 6 2004, OPD was "aware of the hostility between Plaintiffs[,] who OPD knew represented as 7 spokespersons for the vast majority of community members[,] and a small group of members who 8 began to act in a manner to take advantage of the disappearance of Waajid Bey." (Id. ¶ IV.C.) In 9 particular, in the wake of Waajid Bey's disappearance, that small group filed forms for change of 10 ownership and control of Waajid Bey's business, Your Black Muslim Bakery. (Id.) Plaintiffs 11 initiated a civil lawsuit against that small opposition group, then received multiple threats from 12 them and reported those threats to OPD. (Id. ¶¶ IV.D, IV.D.1.)

13 On June 17, 2005, four gunmen attacked John Muhammed Bey. (Id. ¶ IV.F.) Plaintiffs 14 informed OPD that the attack was directly connected to Waajid Bey's murder and the Your Black 15 Muslim bakery opposition group. (Id.) In response to the threat of more violence, John 16 Muhammed Bey left the area and moved to another state with his family. (Id. ¶ IV.G.) On August 17 19, 2005, less than two months after the incident, OPD closed its investigation into the attempted 18 murder of John Muhammed Bey "without conducting any follow up investigations with witnesses 19 or known leads." (Id. ¶ IV.H.) That same week that OPD closed that case, OPD arrested Yusuf 20 Bey 4th ("Yusuf 4th"), a 19-year-old sandwich maker at Your Black Muslim Bakery known by 21 OPD to be connected to Waajid Bey's murder and the attempted murder of John Muhammed Bey.
22 (Id. ¶ IV.H1.) Yusuf 4th was charged with "Domestic Terrorism" for brandishing a shotgun in 23 commission of carjacking and was released on bail. (Id.) Given Yusuf 4th's release and the 24 pattern of violence and threats, Ali Saleem Bey filed an application for a concealed carry weapons
25 permit, but OPD denied the request four months later. (Id. ¶¶ IV.I, IV.L.)

26 In November 2005, OPD met with the FBI to discuss further violent weapons-related 27 incidents involving Yusuf 4th. (Id. ¶ IV.J.) At that time, Yusuf 4th was the "lead suspected" in 28 John Muhammed Bey's attempted murder, but OPD decided to give "special treatment" to Yusuf

1 4th by declining to arrest him despite one officer's desire to do so. (Id.)

2 On July 6, 2007, Ali Saleem Bey "gather[ed] evidence . . . that show[ed] a systemic civil 3 rights violations by OPD against Plaintiffs and associates showing a pattern and practice of 4 discrimination against Plaintiffs as . . . Black Muslims." (Id. ¶ IV.M.) Ali Saleem Bey sought 5 assistance from the Oakland Mayor's Office, which directed him to file complaints with the 6 county district attorney and the city's Citizens Police Review Board. (Id.) Ali Saleem Bey filed 7 OPD police misconduct compliant 07-0538 on July 13, 2007, which faulted OPD and several 8 officers for failure to investigate crimes against Waajid Bey, John Muhammed Bey, and reckless 9 endangerment of Ali Saleem Bey. (Id. ¶ IV.N.) The Citizens Police Review Board closed the 10 complaint on the same day and, as a matter of policy, forwarded the matter to OPD's Internal 11 Affairs Division. (Id.) On July 17, 2007 Ali Saleem Bey turned over more evidence of systemic 12 OPD misconduct and special treatment of Yusuf 4th to journalist Chauncey Bailey. (Id. ¶ IV.O.)

13 On September 1, 2007, OPD's Internal Affairs Division sent Ali Saleem Bey a letter 14 regarding his complaint numbered 07-0538. (Id. at 29.) The letter indicating that the Internal 15 Affairs Division "has documented and worked toward resolving your complaint" and that "[t]he 16 circumstances will be further reviewed in order to improve our future service to the community."
17 (Id.)

18 Nearly seven years then passed during which time Plaintiffs did not pursue any further 19 administrative or judicial avenues for relief. (See id. ¶ IV.R.) In 2013, Plaintiffs gave their 20 evidence to Federal Compliance Director Frazier, who had been appointed to oversee the OPD.
21 (Id.) Frazier directed OPD's Internal Affairs Division to reopen Ali Saleem Bey's Internal Affairs 22 complaint No. 07-0538 and the Criminal Investigation Division's investigations into the murder of 23 Waajid Bey and attempted murder of John Muhammed Bey. (Id. ¶ IV.S.) On July 26, 2013, the 24 Internal Affairs Division reopened a consolidated investigation of these three incidents designated 25 as Internal Affairs complaint No. 13-1062. (Id. ¶ IV.T.)

26 On March 18, 2014, OPD's Internal Affairs Division sent Ali Saleem Bey a letter 27 regarding the resolution of complaint No. 13-1062, which had alleged that "there was a systematic 28 failure on the part of the Oakland Police Department during the investigation of the murder of 1 Waajid Bey and the attempted murder of John Bey as it relates to the follow up criminal 2 investigation.” (Id. at 23.) The letter indicated that OPD’s investigation “disclosed sufficient 3 evidence to determine that the alleged conduct did occur” and therefore “[a] finding of ‘Sustained’

4 has been determined.” (Id.) OPD notified Ali Saleem Bey that “the individual Subject Officers
5 and their immediate supervisor are no longer employed by the [OPD].” (Id.)

6 II. Procedural History

7 Plaintiffs initiated this action on April 9, 2014, and filed the SAC on January 23, 2015.
8 Although Plaintiffs name as Defendants the City of Oakland and Does 1-100, all eight counts of 9 the SAC are brought solely against the City. Six of the counts arise under 42 U.S.C. § 1983, and 10 two under 42 U.S.C. § 1985.

11 Counts One, Two, Four, Six, Seven, and Eight allege that the OPD’s actions related to its 12 treatment of Plaintiffs’ IAD complaints constituted discrimination based on race and religion in 13 violation of Plaintiffs’ right to equal protection under the law. In Count One, Plaintiffs contend 14 that the OPD’s failure to retain notes and documents related to Plaintiffs’ internal affairs 15 complaints and the short-lived investigations that followed violated the Department’s policies and 16 represented racial and religious discrimination against Plaintiffs as Black Muslims. In Count Two, 17 Plaintiffs contend that OPD policy required the Department to resolve all internal affairs
18 complaints by making a particular finding, and that OPD’s failure to resolve Plaintiffs’ complaints 19 constitutes a violation of Section 1983. In the fourth count, Plaintiffs allege that the OPD’s failure
20 to investigate repeated IAD complaints from Plaintiffs—even when, for example, Plaintiff Ali 21 Saleem Bey’s 2013 IAD complaint explicitly complained about the Department’s failure to 22 investigate a prior IAD complaint—is further evidence of a pattern and practice of discrimination.
23 Count Five faults the OPD for misrepresenting in its response to Plaintiff Ali Saleem Bey’s 2013
24 IAD complaint that it no longer employed the officer complained of, when certain officers 25 remained in the OPD’s employ. In Count Seven, Plaintiffs allege that the officers responsible for 26 investigating the 2013 IAD complaint should have recused themselves, and in failing to do so 27 denied Plaintiffs “equal protection of a conflict of interest[-]free investigation.” (Dkt. No. 15 at 28 16.) Finally, in Count Eight Plaintiffs allege that the OPD failed to advise Plaintiffs of their right

1 to have officers tape record all interviews and statements of accused officers in connection with 2 the 2013 IAD investigation, which further violates Plaintiffs' right to equal protection under the 3 law.

4 The two other counts allege that the OPD has conspired to violate Plaintiffs' civil rights in 5 violation of 42 U.S.C. § 1983. In Count Three, Plaintiffs allege that the OPD's failure to 6 investigate the current employees named in Plaintiff Ali Saleem Bey's 2013 IAD complaint was 7 "purposeful, plotted, and planned" and represented the OPD's conspiracy to deprive Plaintiffs of 8 their rights to equal protection under the law. Specifically, Plaintiffs argue that by failing to 9 investigate the employees named in the 2013 IAD complaint, OPD's employees have violated
10 Department policy, obstructed justice, failed to investigate, recklessly endangered and defamed 11 Plaintiffs, and compromised other criminal cases to Plaintiffs' detriment, all as a conspiracy to 12 further a pattern and practice of discriminating against Black Muslims. In Count Five, Plaintiffs 13 contend that the OPD's response to that 2013 IAD complaint, which admits the Department's 14 "systemic failures" in connection with the investigations that Plaintiffs sought.

15 At bottom, Plaintiffs contend that the OPD's conduct stemmed from the Department's 16 general policy and practice of hatred towards Black Muslims.

17 Plaintiffs seek (1) an independent federal investigation of all officers named in Plaintiffs' 18 IAD complaints; (2) immediate removal of the OPD's Chief and Deputy Chief of Police; (3) 19 immediate placement of the OPD into a federal receivership to be overseen and managed by the 20 DOJ Civil Rights Division; (4) an apology and admission regarding the OPD's use of improper 21 "COINTELPRO" tactics, purposeful fomentation of black on black murder and other violence and 22 defaming Black Muslims and the Bey family; and (5) compensation for, among other things, 23 lasting mental, physical, emotional, character, political, and economic harm resulting from the 24 pattern and practice of racial and religious discrimination.

25 The Court previously reviewed Plaintiffs' SAC pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1915(e)(2) and 26 concluded that the allegations were sufficient to survive Section 1915 review and proceed to 27 service. However, the Court noted that its "decision to allow the SAC to proceed to service [was] 28 without prejudice to Defendant moving to dismiss the claims on any grounds." (Dkt. No. 16 at 8.)

1 Defendant then moved to dismiss the SAC in its entirety pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil 2 Procedure 12(c). Plaintiffs' opposition to the motion to dismiss largely relied on the Court's 3 Order reviewing the SAC pursuant to Section 1915 as authority for the sufficiency of the claims, 4 despite that the Courts' Section 1915 review Order clarified that the determination was without 5 prejudice to Defendant moving to dismiss the claim on any grounds. (See Dkt. No. 46; see, e.g., 6 Dkt. No. 16 at 6 (in response to Defendant's argument that certain claims are time-barred, arguing 7 that they "have sufficiently pleaded for the purposes of Section 1915 review a basis for equitable 8 tolling based on allegations that OPD covered up its discriminatory tactics").) Accordingly, the 9 Court permitted Plaintiffs to file a supplemental opposition addressing the merits of Defendant's 10 argument without reliance on the Court's Section 1915 Order as authority, and allowed Defendant
11 to file a supplemental reply. (Id. at 2.)

12 LEGAL STANDARD

13 "After the pleadings are closed, but within such time as not to delay the trial, any party 14 may move for judgment on the pleadings." Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(c). In deciding a Rule 12(c) 15 motion, the court may consider "documents attached to the complaint, documents incorporated by 16 reference in the complaint, or matters of judicial notice." United States v. Ritchie, 342 F.3d 903, 17 908 (9th Cir. 2003). A court "must accept all factual allegations in the complaint as true and 18 construe them in the light most favorable to the non-moving party." Fleming v. Pickard, 581 F.3d 19 922, 925 (9th Cir. 2009) (citation omitted); see also Yakima Valley Mem'l Hosp. v. Wash. State
20 Dep't of Health, 654 F.3d 919, 925 (9th Cir. 2011). Accepting all allegations of the non-moving 21 party as true, judgment "is proper when the moving party clearly establishes on the face of the 22 pleadings that no material issue of fact remains to be resolved and that it is entitled to judgment as 23 a matter of law." Hal Roach Studios, Inc. v. Richard Feiner & Co., Inc., 896 F.2d 1542, 1550 (9th 24 Cir. 1989); see also Lyon v. Chase Bank USA, N.A., 656 F.3d 877, 883 (9th Cir. 2011). When a 25 Rule 12(c) motion is used as a vehicle for a Rule 12(b)(6) motion after an answer is filed, or when 26 it is functionally equivalent to a motion to dismiss for failure to state a claim, the same standard 27 applies to both. Dworkin v. Hustler Magazine Inc., 867 F.2d 1188, 1192 (9th Cir. 1989). In other 28 words, the standard of review is "functionally identical" to the Rule 12(b)(6) standard. Cafasso v.

Gen. Dynamics C4 Sys., Inc., 637 F.3d 1047, 1054 n.4 (9th Cir. 2011). “Dismissal [of claims] can be based on the lack of a cognizable legal theory or the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a cognizable legal theory.” Conservation Force v. Salazar, 646 F.3d 1240, 1242 (9th Cir. 2011) (quoting Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep’t, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1988)).

DISCUSSION

Defendant contends that the SAC must be dismissed for three main reasons: (1) because the statute of limitations bars most of Plaintiffs' causes of action; (2) because Plaintiffs fail to adequately allege deprivation of a constitutional right, as required to state a claim under both Sections 1983 and 1985; and (3) because the intracorporate conspiracy doctrine bars Plaintiffs' Section 1985 conspiracy claims. The Court will address each in turn.

I. Statute of Limitations

A. When Plaintiffs' Claims Accrued

“Section 1983 does not contain its own statute of limitations. Without a federal limitations period, the federal courts borrow the statute of limitations for § 1983 claims applicable to personal injury claims in the forum state.” Two Rivers v. Lewis, 174 F.3d 987, 991 (9th Cir. 1999) (citation omitted). In California, the statute of limitations for personal injury actions is two years.

Canatella v. Van de Kamp, 486 F.3d 1128, 1132 (9th Cir. 2007); see also Cal. Code Civ. Proc. § 335.1. Still, federal law determines when a claim accrues. Morales v. Los Angeles, 214 F.3d 1151, 1153-54 (9th Cir. 2000). “Under federal law, a claim accrues when the plaintiff knows or has reason to know of the injury which is the basis of the action.” Two Rivers, 174 F.3d at 991 (citation omitted); see also Hensley v. United States, 531 F.3d 1052, 1056-57 (9th Cir. 2008) (“As a general rule, a claim accrues when a plaintiff knows or has reason to know of the injury which is the basis of his action [and when] plaintiffs [know] both the fact of injury and its immediate [ ] cause.”) (internal quotation marks omitted). A plaintiff need not know the full extent of his injuries in order for the claim to accrue. See Wallace v. Kato, 549 U.S. 384, 390-91 (2007); see, e.g., Ward v. Ives, No. 2:11-cv-1657-GEB-EFB, 2014 WL 4417764, at *7 (E.D. Cal. Sept. 4, 2014).

Here, the SAC allegations are largely focused on conduct from 2005 to 2007, though the

1 causes of action themselves are almost entirely focused on OPD’s conduct in investigating and 2 resolving the 2013 consolidated Internal Affairs complaint. (See Dkt. No. 15 at 13-16 (Count 1 is 3 failing to retain records from the 2005 and 2007 investigations and the remaining counts involve 4 certain failures or shortcomings related to OPD’s investigation and ultimate resolution of the 2013 5 consolidated Internal Affairs complaint (Counts 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8).

6 i. 2005 investigation

7 The failure to investigate the murder of Waajid Bey occurred following his death in June 8 2005. (Dkt. No. 15 ¶ IV.F.) The failure to investigate the attempted murder of John Muhammed
9 Bey occurred, at the latest, in October 2005—as the SAC alleges that OPD closed its investigation 10 two months after the August 19, 2005 incident. (Id. ¶ IV.H.) Plaintiffs allege that they had 11 evidence of “systemic civil rights violations” by OPD “against Plaintiffs and associates showing a 12 pattern and practice of discrimination against Plaintiffs” as Black Muslims as of July 6, 2007.
13 (Dkt. No. 15 ¶ IV.M.) Having alleged acknowledgment of this discrimination by July 2007, 14 Plaintiffs’ Section 1983 and 1985 claims accrued as of that date. See Hensley, 531 F.3d at 1056-15 57; TwoRivers, 174 F.3d at 991. This is true even if, at that time, Plaintiffs did not have 16 knowledge of the full extent of the discrimination that they may have later learned, for example, 17 after collecting documents through FOIA requests. See Wallace, 549 U.S. at 390-91; Ward, 2014 18 WL 4417764, at *7. Applying the two-year statute of limitations, Plaintiffs should have filed an 19 action challenging the OPD’s discriminatory failure to investigate the murder of Waajid Bey and 20 attempted murder of John Muhammed Bey by July 2009.

21 ii. 2007 Internal Affairs complaint

22 To the extent that Plaintiffs’ claims arise out of discriminatory conduct in connection with 23 OPD’s investigation of Ali Saleem Bey’s 2007 Internal Affairs complaint No. 07-0538, Defendant 24 urges that any such claim accrued on September 1, 2007 “when Plaintiffs received notice, to their 25 great dissatisfaction and dismay, that the investigation had been completed and would be closed.”
26 (Dkt. No. 33 at 10.) Plaintiffs indeed allege that the investigation initiated by their 07-0538 27 Internal Affairs complaint was closed only 29 days after the 2007 murder of Chauncey Bailey.
28 (Dkt. No. 15 at 29 (“Note: IAD complaint 07-0538 was filed 7/13/2007 4 days before Bailey

1 received story from Saleem Bey and over 2 weeks before his murder. Then it was closed 29 days
2 after his murder and it never shows up in any investigation.”).) Thus, any claims arising from that 3 investigation are time barred.

4 Finally, some of Plaintiffs’ allegations—perhaps the lion’s share of their actual causes of 5 action—are based on OPD’s conduct in the course of investigating the consolidated 2013 Internal 6 Affairs complaint, No. 13-1062. Plaintiffs received notice of OPD’s response to that consolidated
7 complaint on March 18, 2014 and filed this action just three weeks later—well within the two-year
8 statute of limitations. Indeed, Defendant appears to concede that any discriminatory conduct 9 associated with OPD’s investigation and handling of the 2013 consolidated Internal Affairs
10 investigation is timely. (See Dkt. No. 44 at 5.)

11       B.     The Continuing Violations Doctrine Does Not Apply

12 Plaintiffs appear to contend that the continuing violations doctrine applies to reach back 13 from the 2013 Internal Affairs complaint and make the earlier time-barred claims actionable. (See 14 Dkt. No. 43 at 11 (“Defendant was repeatedly and ‘unbroken’ put on notice by Plaintiffs 2007 – 15 2014” of the claims”); id. at 12 (explaining that the allegations report “multiple and repeating 16 instances of civil rights violations against the same persons” that are “all clearly related” and 17 create a “pattern”).)

18       The continuing violation theory applies to Section 1983 actions. See Pouncil v. Tilton, 704 19 F.3d 568, 580 (9th Cir. 2012); Knox v. Davis, 260 F.3d 1009, 1013 (9th Cir. 2001) (citation 20 omitted). The theory allows a plaintiff to seek relief for events outside of the limitations period 21 where the wrong continued unabated into the limitations period. See Pouncil, 704 F.3d at 580 22 (citation omitted). However, “discrete discriminatory acts are not actionable if time-barred, even 23 when they are related to acts alleged in timely filed charges.”<sup>2</sup> Nat'l R.R. Passenger Corp. v.
24 Morgan, 536 U.S. 101, 113 (2002). “Although Morgan was a Title VII case, . . . [the Ninth 25 Circuit has] applied Morgan to bar [Section] 1983 claims predicated on discrete time-barred acts,

27       

<sup>2</sup> Even when these earlier acts are time-barred and therefore not actionable, a plaintiff may still use
28 them “as evidence to establish motive and to put his timely-filed claims in context.” Pouncil, 704
F.3d at 580 (citing RK Ventures, Inc. v. City of Seattle, 307 F.3d 1045, 1062 (9th Cir. 2002)).

1 notwithstanding that those acts are related to timely-filed claims.” Carpinteria Valley Farms, Ltd.
2 v. Cnty. of Santa Barbara, 344 F.3d 822, 829 (9th Cir. 2003) (citation omitted).<sup>3</sup> Even where acts 3 occur as part of an ongoing policy or practice, if the “heart of the plaintiffs’ complaint does not 4 stem from the policy . . . but rather from the individualized decisions that resulted from 5 implementation of the policy, . . . [t]hese individualized decisions are best characterized as discrete 6 acts, rather than as a pattern or practice of discrimination.” Cherosky v. Henderson, 330 F.3d
7 1243, 1247 (9th Cir. 2003); see, e.g., Spitzer v. Aljoe, No. 13-CV-05442-MEJ, 2015 WL 1843787, 8 at *8 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 6, 2015). Thus, the question is whether a case involves “the delayed, but 9 inevitable, consequences of the [earlier time-barred conduct], or an independently wrongful, 10 discrete act [within the limitations period[.]” Pouncil, 704 F.3d at 581.

11 Here, Plaintiffs allege generally that OPD had a policy of discriminating against Black 12 Muslims. But the particular allegations of discriminatory conduct relate to discrete incidents: 13 OPD’s failure to investigate the murder of Waajid Bey and the attempted murder of John 14 Muhammed Bey in 2007; and failure to adequately and impartially investigate the 2013 15 consolidated Internal Affairs complaint. While the Ninth Circuit has not held that a failure to 16 investigate pursuant to a policy of discrimination constitutes a discrete act, it has held that 17 particular instances of allegedly discriminatory conduct that occurred pursuant to an ongoing 18 policy qualify as discrete acts under Morgan. See Pouncil, 704 F.3d at 583 (finding plaintiff’s 19 request for conjugal visits in 2008 was a discrete act from his request for conjugal visits in 2002); 20 Cherosky, 330 F.3d at 1238 (noting that denial of an employee’s new request for the same

26 <sup>3</sup> Prior to Morgan, courts held that a continuing violation may also exist where a defendant 27 maintains a “discriminatory system or policy” that “operated at least in part within the limitation 28 period[.]” Green v. Los Angeles Cnty. Superintendent of Sch., 883 F.2d 1472, 1480 (9th Cir.
1989). “Since Green, however, the United States Supreme Court has held that discrete acts are concluding that the continuing violation doctrine did not apply). Further, the actual causes of action similarly relate to discrete incidents: the City’s failure to retain records from the 2005 and 2007 investigations (Count 1); and certain failures or shortcomings related to OPD’s investigation and ultimate resolution of the 2013 consolidated Internal Affairs complaint (Counts 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8). This case does not involve the continued ill effects of the earlier 2007 discriminatory OPD practices, but rather a discrete incident of alleged misconduct—the failure to properly investigate the 2013 complaint. Thus, the continuing violation doctrine does not reach back to save Plaintiffs’ otherwise time-barred claims. See Pouncil, 704 F.3d at 583; Cherosky, 330 F.3d at 1238; Thompson, 314 F. Supp. 2d at 1026-27.

Plaintiffs’ citation of Flowers v. Carville, 310 F.3d 1118 (9th Cir. 2002), is unpersuasive. Flowers merely noted that the continuing tort doctrine applies only when there is no “single incident” that “can fairly or realistically be identified as the cause of significant harm.” Id. at 1126 (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). Plaintiffs’ reliance on two cases from other circuits, Miller v. Beneficial Management Corp., 977 F.2d 834 (3d Cir. 1992), and O’Rourke v. City of Providence, 235 F.3d 713 (1st Cir. 2001), is also unavailing. These cases were decided before Morgan and thus before the United States Supreme Court held that “discrete discriminatory acts are not actionable if time barred, even when they are related to acts alleged in a timely charge.” Carpinteria, 344 F.3d at 828 (quoting Morgan, 536 U.S. at 113). In short, the continuing violation doctrine does not apply here to save Plaintiffs’ otherwise time-barred claims.

C. There Are No Grounds for Extending the Limitations Period

Notwithstanding the foregoing conclusion, there are two doctrines that may extend the limitations period of preclude a defendant from asserting a statute of limitations defense: equitable tolling and equitable estoppel.

1. Equitable Tolling

In their first opposition, but not their supplemental opposition, Plaintiffs included a section of their argument entitled “Equitable Tolling Applies to Plaintiffs’ Claims[.]” (Dkt. No. 43 at 12.) Equitable tolling focuses on “whether there was excusable delay by the plaintiff[.]” Johnson v. Henderson, 314 F.3d 409, 414 (9th Cir. 2002). The body of that section of Plaintiffs’ brief was

1 actually devoted to an argument for equitable estoppel, a different doctrine that can bring in 2 otherwise untimely claims for different reasons. (See Dkt. No. 43 at 12-13 (“[Defendants’] 3 fraudulent concealment of IAD07-0538 (EQUITABLE ESTOPPEL) directly impeded Plaintiffs’
4 ability to file a timely Complaint”) (emphasis in original).) It may be that Plaintiffs used the term 5 “tolling” because the Court referenced tolling in its Order reviewing the SAC under Section 1915.
6 (See Dkt. No. 16 at 6.) In any event, in their supplemental opposition, Plaintiffs do not contend 7 that they are entitled to equitable tolling of the statute of limitations and instead focus exclusively 8 on equitable estoppel (Dkt. No. 47 at 12-15), as will the Court.

9                   2.     Equitable Estoppel

10         Equitable estoppel “focuses primarily on the actions taken by the defendant to prevent a 11 plaintiff from filing suit[.]” Lukovsky v. City & Cnty. of San Francisco, 535 F.3d 1044, 1051 (9th 12 Cir. 2008) (citation omitted) (emphasis in original). “The doctrine of equitable estoppel, often 13 referred to as fraudulent concealment, is based on the principle that a party should not be allowed 14 to benefit from its own wrongdoing.” Estate of Amaro v. City of Oakland, 653 F.3d 808, 813 (9th 15 Cir. 2011) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted). The doctrine “focuses primarily on the 16 actions taken by the defendant in preventing a plaintiff from filing suit.” Santa Maria v. Pac. Bell, 17 202 F.3d 1170, 1176 (9th Cir. 2000). The plaintiff carries the burden of pleading and proving the 18 following elements of equitable estoppel: “(1) knowledge of the true facts by the party to be 19 estopped, (2) intent to induce reliance or actions giving rise to a belief in that intent, (3) ignorance 20 of the true facts by the relying party, and (4) detrimental reliance.” Bolt v. United States, 944 F.2d 21 603, 609 (9th Cir. 1991); see also Lukovsky, 535 F.3d at 1051 (noting that the requirements under 22 California law are the same). As for the third element, “a plaintiff can know, or suspect, that she 23 has a cause of action and still be ‘ignorant of the true facts’ of the case.” Amaro, 653 F.3d at 813.
24 Equitable estoppel bars a statute of limitations defense “when a plaintiff who knows of his cause 25 of action reasonably relies on the defendant’s statements or conduct in failing to bring suit.” Stitt, 26 919 F.2d at 522.

27         When estoppel is sought against the government, “there must be affirmative misconduct 28 (not mere negligence) and a serious injustice outweighing the damage to the public interest of 1 estopping the government.” Id. Put another way, a plaintiff asserting equitable estoppel “must 2 point to some fraudulent concealment, some active conduct by the defendant ‘above and beyond 3 the wrongdoing upon which the plaintiff’s claim is filed, to prevent the plaintiff from suing in 4 time.’” Lukovsky, 535 F.3d at 1051-51 (emphasis in original) (quoting Guerrero v. Gates, 442 5 F.3d 697, 706 (9th Cir. 2006)).

6 But Plaintiffs have not sufficiently alleged the elements of equitable estoppel. Though it is 7 not entirely clear from their opposition or supplemental opposition, their argument appears to be 8 that (1) OPD had knowledge of its own discrimination and that it covered up its own wrongdoing;
9 (2) OPD issued reports about the 2007 internal affairs complaint to prevent Plaintiffs from filing
10 suit; (3) Plaintiffs did not know that there was actual discrimination or cover-ups going on; and (4)
11 they detrimentally relied on OPD’s cover-up by not bringing a federal action. See Bolt, 944 F.2d 12 at 609; Lukovsky, 535 F.3d at 1051. But this is not adequately alleged in the SAC; instead, it 13 appears from the SAC that Plaintiffs were convinced they had a discrimination claim as early as 14 2007, but waited to file suit until 2013 when OPD admitted some wrongdoing related to the earlier 15 investigations. But the resolution of the 2013 investigation was not a smoking gun that changed 16 the Plaintiffs’ knowledge of their case.

17 Estate of Amaro v. City of Oakland, 653 F.3d 808 (2011), does not persuade the Court 18 otherwise. There, police officers severely beat a man (“decedent”) during the course of his arrest, 19 and several individuals witnessed the incident. Id. at 809-10. The police report of the arrest 20 omitted any reference to the beating. Id. at 810. Despite repeated reports of pain and requests for 21 medical attention, the decedent was denied any medical attention. Five days later, upon his 22 release, the decedent told his mother—the lead plaintiff in the action—about the beating. Id. At 23 some point, the decedent saw a doctor, who urged him to seek immediate emergency medical care 24 due to multiple broken ribs and a collapsed lung. Id. The plaintiff expressed to his mother his 25 intent to sue the police department. Id. He did not seek emergency medical treatment, and instead 26 was found dead in his friend’s house several days later; the autopsy confirmed that his death was 27 due to blunt trauma consistent with the decedent’s report of the beating. Id. Despite his 28 knowledge of the cause of death, the investigator assigned to the incident nevertheless reported to

1 the decedent's mother that he had died in the street due to gang violence. Id. at 811. The plaintiff 2 still believed her son, and sought police records, but the department repeatedly denied her 3 requests. Id. The department then opened an internal affairs investigation into the incident, which 4 confirmed that the police had beaten the decedent, that the report left out that information, that the 5 reporting officer had forged his supervisor's signature on the report, and that the officers had been 6 derelict in not responding to the decedent's request for medical attention. Id. at 812. The 7 department never gave the plaintiff a copy of this internal affairs report. Id. Because the plaintiff 8 had no records or evidence to support her claim of excessive force, all five attorneys the plaintiff
9 met with regarding a possible wrongful death case declined to take her case. Id. One attorney 10 helped the plaintiff file a claim under the Governmental Tort Action statute alleging excessive 11 force, but the city took no action on this claim. Id. More than eight years later—well past the 12 statute of limitations—the FBI launched an investigation into multiple allegations of excessive 13 force by Oakland police officers, including the incident involving the decedent. Id. Only once 14 news reports of this FBI investigation surfaced was the plaintiff able to secure counsel to file her 15 Section 1983 claim about her son's death. Id.

16 The district court denied the City's motion for summary judgment, concluding that the 17 plaintiff had submitted evidence sufficient to establish equitable estoppel. The court also certified 18 to the Ninth Circuit for interlocutory appeal the question of whether equitable estoppel applies 19 when a plaintiff believes she has a cause of action, but is ignorant of the true facts. The Ninth 20 Circuit affirmed and held that “the doctrine of equitable estoppel does apply where a plaintiff 21 believes she has a 42 U.S.C. § 1983 claim but is dissuaded from bringing the claim by affirmative 22 misrepresentations and stonewalling by the police.” Id. at 815.

23 Plaintiffs urge that this case involves the same defendant (the city of Oakland and its police 24 department), the “same ‘Blue Stone Wall’ circumstances” and therefore equitable estoppel should 25 also apply. But unlike Amaro, the SAC does not include allegations that OPD made affirmative 26 misrepresentations about the underlying incidents. For example, there are no allegations that OPD 27 presented documents to Plaintiffs that covered up the facts of Waajid Bey’s murder or the 28 investigation into it, or about John Bey’s attempted murder and associated investigation. Instead,

1 OPD's letter closing Internal Affairs investigation number 07-0538 indicated OPD "has 2 documented and worked toward resolving your complaint" and that "[t]he circumstances will be 3 further reviewed in order to improve our future service to the community." (Dkt. No. 15 at 29.) 4 While the investigation might have been subpar, such inadequate police services are the basis of 5 Plaintiffs' discrimination claim and therefore cannot serve as the separate, affirmative misconduct
6 underlying a governmental estoppel. Nor are there any allegations here, as in Amaro, that OPD
7 later admitted covering up unconstitutional conduct: in Amaro, OPD admitted covering up 8 evidence of excessive force, whereas the letter resolving Plaintiffs' 2013 Internal Affairs 9 complaint merely indicates that the department did not adequately investigate Plaintiffs' claims in 10 2004, 2005 and 2007. Neither the letter nor any other SAC allegations indicate that OPD ever 11 acknowledged discrimination. The facts alleged here are simply not of the same quality as those 12 in Amaro.

13 Lastly, Plaintiffs appear to argue that OPD is equitably estopped from asserting a statute of 14 limitations defense because it owes a fiduciary relationship to Plaintiffs. (Dkt. No. 47 at 8-9.) 15 Plaintiffs cite Parson v. Tickner, 31 Cal. App. 4th 1513 (1995), for the concept of the "delayed 16 accrual rule," which provides that the "fiduciary relationship carries a duty of full disclosure, and 17 application of the discovery rule 'prevents the fiduciary from obtaining immunity for an initial 18 breach of duty by a subsequent breach of the obligation of disclosure.'" Id. at 1526. In other 19 words, a fiduciary cannot assert a statute of limitations defense by failing to disclose information 20 critical to the claim. But for this rule to apply, the defendant must have a duty to disclose based 21 on a fiduciary or confidential relationship. Plaintiffs argue that OPD has a "fiduciary 22 responsibility under color of law [ ] to give equal treatment of an impartial [Internal Affairs 23 Division] investigation executed according to Defendant['s] Manual of Rules" and failed to do so.
24 (Dkt. No. 47 at 9.) But Plaintiffs cite no authority for the proposition that police owe a fiduciary 25 duty in this context, and the Court has found none.

26 In short, Plaintiffs have not alleged facts sufficient to plausibly support equitable estoppel.
27 * * *

28 For the reasons explained above, any claims related to OPD's conduct regarding the 2004,

1 2005, and 2007 investigations are time-barred and must be dismissed. These factual allegations 2 may still serve as relevant evidence regarding the timely Section 1983 and 1985 claims. See 3 Pouncil, 704 F.3d at 580 (citing RK Ventures, Inc., 307 F.3d at 1062).

4 II. Adequacy of Timely Claims

5 As discussed above, the only timely claims are those based on Defendant's 2013 Internal 6 Affairs Division investigation. The Court will now address the sufficiency of these claims.

7 A. Section 1983 Claims

8 To state a claim under Section 1983, a complaint "must both (1) allege the deprivation of a 9 right secured by the federal Constitution or statutory law, and (2) allege that the deprivation was 10 committed by a person acting under color of state law." Anderson v. Warner, 451 F.3d 1063, 11 1067 (9th Cir. 2006). "To adequately plead these elements, the complaint must identify what 12 constitutional or other federal right each defendant violated, providing sufficient facts to plausibly 13 support each purported violation." See Burnell v. Marin Humane Soc'y, No. 14-cv-05635-JSC, 14 2015 WL 4089844, at *2 (N.D. Cal. July 6, 2015) (citations omitted).

15 Here, Plaintiffs' Section 1983 claims allege violations of their right to equal protection 16 under the law based on religious and racial discrimination as Black Muslims. To state a Section 17 1983 claim for violation of the Equal Protection Clause a plaintiff must show that the defendants 18 acting under the color of state law "acted with an intent or purpose to discriminate against the 19 plaintiff based on membership in a protected class[.]" Thornton v. City of St. Helens, 425 F.3d 20 1158, 1196 (9th Cir. 2005) (citation omitted). A plaintiff must also include allegations that 21 plausibly establish "that [the] plaintiff was treated differently from persons similarly situated."
22 Lam v. City & Cnty. of San Francisco, 868 F. Supp. 2d 928, 951 (N.D. Cal. 2012), aff'd, 565 F.
23 App'x 641 (9th Cir. 2014); Castro v. City of Union City, No. 14-cv-00272-MEJ, 2014 WL
24 4063006, at *9 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 14, 2014) (noting that, to state an equal protection discrimination 25 claim, the plaintiff "must allege facts showing that there were similarly-situated individuals not in 26 his protected class who were treated more favorably") (citation omitted). Conclusory allegations 27 of discrimination are not enough. Ventura Mobilehome Cmtys. Owners Ass'n v. City of San 28 Buenaventura, 371 F.3d 1046, 1055 (9th Cir. 2004).

1           In addition, all of the Section 1983 claims in the SAC are pleaded against the City of 2 Oakland. “Municipalities are ‘persons’ under [Section 1983] and thus may be liable for causing a 3 constitutional deprivation.” Long v. Cnty. of Los Angeles, 442 F.3d 1178, 1185 (9th Cir. 2005)
4 (citing Monell v. Dep’t of Social Servs. of City of N.Y., 436 U.S. 658, 691 (1978)). However, “a 5 municipality may not be sued under [Section] 1983 solely because an injury was inflicted by its 6 employees or agents.” Id. Instead, municipal liability requires that “an action pursuant to official 7 municipal policy of some nature caused a constitutional tort.” Jefferson v. City of Fremont, 73 F.
8 Supp. 3d 1133, 1148 (N.D. Cal. 2014) (citing Monell, 436 U.S. at 691); see also Long, 442 F.3d at 9 1185 (“[I]t is only when execution of a government’s policy or custom inflicts the injury that the 10 municipality as an entity is responsible.”). Thus, to state a claim for municipal liability under 11 Section 1983 for a violation of constitutional rights, a plaintiff must allege facts showing (1) that 12 he possessed a constitutional right of which he was deprived; (2) that the municipality had a 13 policy; (3) that this policy amounts to deliberate indifference to the plaintiff’s constitutional rights; 14 and (4) that the policy is the moving force behind the constitutional violation. Plumeau v. Sch.
15 Dist. No. 40 Cnty. of Yamhill, 130 F.3d 432, 438 (9th Cir. 1997); see also AE ex rel. Hernandez v.
16 Cnty. of Tulare, 666 F.3d 631, 636 (9th Cir. 2012) (“[P]laintiffs must establish that the local 17 government had a deliberate policy, custom, or practice that was the moving force behind the 18 constitutional violation they suffered.”) (citation omitted). There can be no municipal liability 19 without an underlying constitutional violation. Scott v. Henrich, 39 F.3d 912, 916 (9th Cir. 1994).

20           1.       Count 1

21           The first count is a Section 1983 claim against the City for racial and religious 22 discrimination by failure to retain records of (1) the investigation into the 2005 attempted murder 23 of John Muhammed Bey and (2) the 2007 Internal Affairs complaint that Ali Saleem Bey filed.

24           A plaintiff can state a claim for Section 1983 liability—against both officers involved and 25 a municipality—where the plaintiff alleges that the police department’s failure to investigate 26 citizens’ complaints amounts to deliberate indifference to the need for police action. See, e.g., 27 Lacy v. Cnty. of San Diego, No. 12-CV-624, 2012 WL 4111507, at *3-4 (S.D. Cal. Sept. 18, 28 2012). A Section 1983 may also lie based on allegations that a police department administered its

1 internal investigations procedures in a manner motivated by intentional discrimination against 2 Black Muslims. See Elliot-Park v. Manglona, 592 F.3d 1003, 1007 (9th Cir. 2010). But the 3 allegations in Count 1 fail to state a claim.

4 On the one hand, Plaintiffs have alleged that OPD had a policy of discriminating against 5 Black Muslims. But they have not connected that discriminatory policy to the failure to retain 6 records of the investigations. There are no allegations that OPD actually retained records of 7 investigations into reported crimes against and Internal Affairs complaints filed by non-Black 8 Muslims—thus, there are no allegations regarding OPD’s treatment of similarly situated 9 individuals. On their own, the allegations that Plaintiffs, as Black Muslims, are members of a 10 protected class and that OPD officers provided diminished police services to them in the form of 11 failure to retain records is not enough to plausibly allege discriminatory intent or differential, 12 discriminatory treatment, no matter how diminished the services were. See Ventura Mobilehome Cmtys. Owners Ass’n, 371 F.3d at 1055; Lam, 868 F. Supp. 2d at 951; Castro, 2014 WL 4063006, 13 at *9. Accordingly, Plaintiffs fail to state a plausible claim for relief as to Count 1.

14
15           2.       Count 2

16           The Court reaches the same conclusion about the second count. Count 2 is a Section 1983
17 claim against the City for racial and religious discrimination by failing to resolve Plaintiffs’ 2013
18 Internal Affairs complaint as mandated by OPD policy. Specifically, Plaintiffs allege that the City 19 failed to make any findings on any of Plaintiffs’ factual claims against officers still employed at 20 OPD. (Dkt. No. 15 at 13-14.) As with the failure to retain records alleged in Count 1, Plaintiffs 21 have failed to connect the alleged failure to make factual findings in connection with the 2013
22 investigation into OPD’s alleged policy and practice of discriminating against Black Muslims.
23 There are no allegations that OPD followed its policy by making factual findings against current 24 officers in the context of Internal Affairs complaints filed by non-Black Muslims—thus, there are 25 no allegations regarding OPD’s treatment of similarly situated individuals. On their own, the 26 allegations that Plaintiffs, as Black Muslims, are members of a protected class and that OPD 27 officers provided diminished police services to them in the form of failure to make factual findings 28 consistent with department policy is not enough to plausibly allege discriminatory intent or

1 differential, discriminatory treatment, no matter how diminished the services were. Accordingly, 2 Plaintiffs fail to state a plausible claim for relief as to Count 2.

3       3.     Count 4

4       Count 4 fares no better. In Count 4, Plaintiffs allege that OPD's investigation of Plaintiffs' 5 2013 Internal Affairs complaint failed to investigate Ali Saleem Bey's 2007 Internal Affairs 6 complaint—which, in turn, was a complaint for failure to investigate the 2004 and 2005 crimes 7 against Waajid Bey and John Muhammed Bey—as part of the department's pattern and practice of 8 discrimination. (Dkt. No. 15 at 14.)

9       The SAC does allege that OPD investigated and made findings regarding the initial 10 investigations into the 2004 and 2005 crimes against the Beys, and sustained Plaintiffs' allegations 11 that the investigations were insufficient. The gravamen of Count 4 seems to be that OPD also 12 should have sustained Ali Saleem Bey's Internal Affairs complaint as a separate instance of 13 wrongdoing. But the 2013 Internal Affairs complaint reopened the 2007 Internal Affairs 14 complaint, so such a finding would appear to be unnecessary. But even if it were not, again, 15 Plaintiffs have failed to connect the 2013 failure to investigate the 2007 Internal Affairs complaint 16 in the context of the 2013 Internal Affairs investigation to OPD's alleged policy and practice of 17 discriminating against Black Muslims. There are no allegations that OPD make findings on 18 underlying Internal Affairs complaints filed by non-Black Muslims when they were reopened and 19 consolidated with other Internal Affairs complaints—thus, there are no allegations regarding 20 OPD's treatment of similarly situated individuals. On their own, the allegations that Plaintiffs, as 21 Black Muslims, are members of a protected class and that OPD officers provided diminished 22 police services to them in the form of failure to make factual findings consistent with department 23 policy is not enough to plausibly allege discriminatory intent or differential, discriminatory 24 treatment, no matter how diminished the services were. Accordingly, Plaintiffs fail to state a 25 plausible claim for relief as to Count 4.

26       4.     Count 5

27       The same is true of Count 5. The fifth count alleges that the City of Oakland is liable 28 under Section 1983 for violating Plaintiffs' civil rights and violating department policy by stating

1 in their letter resolving Plaintiffs' 2013 Internal Affairs complaint that the "individual Subject
2 Officers and their immediate supervisor are no longer employed by" OPD when Deputy Chief 3 Downing and OPD Chief Sean Whent were still working there. (Dkt. No. 15 at 15.)

4 The SAC does not allege that Plaintiffs specifically named David Downing and Sean 5 Whent as having committed wrongdoing in their Internal Affairs complaints, and the attached 6 copies of the complaints themselves indicate that they did not. To the contrary, the factual 7 allegations of Count 5 appear to concede they do not, alleging instead that Plaintiffs "implicitly 8 complained" of Downing's and Whent's conduct in relation to Ali Saleem Bey's 2007 Internal 9 Affairs complaint. (Dkt. No. 15 at 15.) But even if they had, the SAC does not contain 10 allegations that connect any misrepresentation about the employment status of Downing and 11 Whent to Plaintiffs' protected status as Black Muslims, nor allegations that such false statements 12 are not asserted against similarly situated individuals.

13 5. Count 7

14 In Count 7, Plaintiffs allege that the City of Oakland violated their right to equal protection 15 and violated the department's own policy by failing to provide an unbiased investigation due to a 16 conflict of interest because certain officers should have recused themselves from the 2013 17 investigation because they were named in the complaint. (Dkt. N. 15 at 16.) Again, Plaintiffs 18 have not connected the officers' recusal, or lack thereof, to Plaintiffs' race. Nor have they alleged 19 that the officers would have recused themselves if the Internal Affairs complaint had been filed by 20 similarly situated individuals of other racial and religious backgrounds. Plaintiffs have therefore 21 failed to state a claim for a Section 1983 equal protection violation based on these alleged conflicts 22 of interest.

23 6. Count 8

24 Lastly, Count 8 is a Section 1983 claim for violating Plaintiffs' right to equal protection by 25 failing to advise Plaintiffs of their right to transcripts of any and all interviews with accused 26 officers and failing to investigate the officers named in the 2013 Internal Affairs complaint. (Dkt.
27 No. 15 at 17.) Like the foregoing claims, Plaintiffs have not connected the failure to disclose the 28 availability or existence of transcripts to Plaintiffs' race or religion, nor have they alleged that

1 OPD treats similarly-situated individuals of a different race or religion differently when it comes 2 to Internal Affairs interview transcripts. Thus, Plaintiffs fail to state a Section 1983 claim for an 3 equal protection violation based on failure to advise Plaintiffs of their right to request transcript of 4 involved-officer interviews.

5 * * *

6 In short, Plaintiffs have failed to plausibly allege any equal protection violations stemming 7 from OPD's investigation into their 2013 Internal Affairs complaint. Because Plaintiffs have 8 failed to state a claim for a violation of a constitutional right, the Court need not address whether 9 the City's custom, policy, or practice was the moving force behind the violation for the purposes 10 of establishing municipal liability. See Scott, 39 F.3d at 916.

11       B.     Section 1985 Conspiracy Claims

12 Counts three and six of the SAC allege that the City of Oakland is liable for conspiracy to 13 violate Plaintiffs' civil rights pursuant to 42 U.S.C. § 1985. But Section 1985 is not a stand-alone 14 substantive right. It "creates no independent cause of action and provides remedial relief only 15 after a violation of a specifically defined and designated federal right is first established." Harmon 16 v. City of Fresno, No. CV F 08-1311 LJO GSA, 2008 WL 4690897, at *9 (E.D. Cal. Oct. 21, 17 2008). Because, as discussed above, the SAC does not allege fact sufficient to state a plausible 18 claim that Defendant violated any constitutional right of Plaintiffs, the Section 1985 counts 19 likewise fail to state a claim. See Vinatieri v. Mosley, 787 F. Supp. 2d 1022, 1031 (N.D. Cal.
20 2011).

21       The Section 1985 claims fail for another reason, as well. To state a claim for violation of 22 Section 1985, a plaintiff must allege facts sufficient to establish a conspiracy. See Olsen v. Idaho 23 State Bd. of Med., 363 F.3d 916, 929 (9th Cir. 2004) (affirming dismissal of § 1985 claim where 24 plaintiff's complaint included no allegations describing the defendants' agreement to violate her 25 constitutional rights and failed to adequately allege a constitutional violation); see also Burns v.
26 Cnty. of King, 883 F.2d 819, 821 (9th Cir. 1989) (noting that a § 1983 plaintiff "must state specific 27 facts to support the existence of the claimed conspiracy"); Gressett v. Contra Costa Cnty., No. C-28 12-3798 EMC, 2013 WL 2156278, at *15-16 (N.D. Cal. May 17, 2013) ("Whether a plaintiff has

1 alleged sufficient facts to show a conspiracy is generally a case[-]specific, fact-intensive inquiry.
2 Courts look to a variety of factors, such as whether the plaintiff has set forth facts from which a 3 motive can be inferred, facts showing acts taken in furtherance of the conspiracy, and facts 4 showing specific agreement to be part of a conspiracy.”) (citations omitted); see, e.g., Lacey v.
5 Maricopa Cnty., 693 F.3d 896, 935-36 (9th Cir. 2012) (existence of conspiracy adequately alleged 6 where, among other reasons, the complaint “detail[ed] reasons for why each [conspirator] had a 7 motive”); Sanchez v. Aviva Life & Annuity Co., No. C-09-1454 FCD, 2010 WL 2606670, at *4 8 (E.D. Cal. June 28, 2010) (sufficient to include “detailed allegations regarding the nature of the 9 conspiracy, the communication and interaction between [the members of the conspiracy], the 10 nature and mechanics of the [acts taken in furtherance of the conspiracy], and the motives of the 11 alleged conspiring parties.”). Here, aside from the broad allegation that OPD had a policy and 12 practice of discriminating against Black Muslims, Plaintiffs’ conspiracy claims do not include 13 facts demonstrating that OPD and any individual officers entered any such agreement, what each 14 participant’s role was, whether each participant had knowledge of the plan to violate Plaintiffs’ 15 rights and how they did so. The SAC therefore fails to plausibly allege conspiracy.

16 In addition, the SAC names only the City of Oakland as a defendant, and alleges that only 17 the City of Oakland is liable for the Section 1985 conspiracy. However, it appears that the basis 18 of the claim is that OPD conspired with its own employees to violate Plaintiffs’ rights. (See Dkt.
19 No. 15 at 14-15.) Under the intracorporate conspiracy doctrine, “a corporation cannot conspire 20 with its own employees or agents.” Wash. v. Duty Free Shoppers, 696 F. Supp. 1323, 1325 (N.D.
21 Cal. 1988) (citation omitted). The Ninth Circuit “has not yet addressed whether individual 22 members of a single government entity can form a ‘conspiracy’ within the meaning of [S]ection 23 1985[,]” and other circuits are split. Fakoya v. Cnty. of Clark, No. 2:12-cv-02149-JAD-CWH, 24 2014 WL 5020592, at *7 (D. Nev. Oct. 8, 2014) (citations omitted); see also Portman v. Cnty. of 25 Santa Clara, 995 F.2d 898, 910 (9th Cir. 1993) (recognizing the split in authority but declining to 26 resolve the dispute). Courts within this District also appear split on the issue. Compare Rabkin v.
27 Dean, 856 F. Supp. 543, 551-52 (N.D. Cal. 1994) (finding “persuasive the rationale supporting the 28 application of the intra-corporate conspiracy doctrine to bar a Section 1985 claim where the

1 conspiratorial conduct challenged is essentially a single act by a single governmental body acting 2 exclusively through its own officers, each acting within the scope of his or her official capacity”), 3 and Welsh v. City & Cnty. of San Francisco, No. C-93-3722 DLJ, 1995 WL 415127, at *3 (N.D.
4 Cal. June 30, 1995) (barring § 1985 claim against City of San Francisco and its agents pursuant to 5 intracorporate conspiracy doctrine), with Rashdan v. Geissberger, No. C 10-00634 SBA, 2011 WL 6 197957, at *7 (N.D. Cal. Jan. 14, 2011) (declining to extend the intracorporate conspiracy doctrine
7 to a § 1985(3) claim); Rivers, 2010 WL 145094, at *7-8 (same); Washington, 696 F. Supp. at 1327 8 (same).

9 The Supreme Court has also declined to answer the question. See Hull v. Shuck, 501 U.S.
10 1261, 1261 (1991); Great Am. Fed. Sav. & Loan Ass’n v. Novotny, 442 U.S. 366, 372 n.11 (1979).
11 The Second, Fourth, Sixth, Seventh, and Eighth Circuits extend the doctrine to Section 1985 12 claims, thus barring conspiracy claims that a single government entity conspired with its own 13 employees, but the First, Third, Tenth, and Eleventh Circuits do not apply the doctrine and allow 14 such claims. See Rivers v. Cnty. of Marin, No. C-09-1614 EMC, 2010 WL 145094, at *7-8 (N.D.
15 Cal. Jan. 8, 2010); Hoefer v. Fluor Daniel, Inc., 92 F. Supp. 2d 1055, 1057-58 (C.D. Cal. 2000); 16 Washington v. Duty Free Shoppers, 696 F. Supp. 1323, 1326-27 (N.D. Cal. 1988). However, 17 “even those circuits that extend the doctrine to civil rights cases” have “recognized an exception 18 where an officer or agent has an independent personal stake in achieving the corporation’s illegal 19 objective.” Rivers, 2010 WL 145094, at *8 (internal quotation marks and citations omitted).

20 In Rashdan, the Court noted that the intracorporate conspiracy doctrine was first developed 21 in the context of antitrust cases, and the Ninth Circuit “has counseled that application of the 22 doctrine is dependent upon the type of conduct the statute at issue is intended to proscribe.” 2011 23 WL 197957, at *6. Specifically, in Webster v. Omnitrition International, Inc., the court held that 24 the intracorporate conspiracy doctrine does not apply to conspiracy claims under the Racketeer 25 Influenced Corrupt Organizations Act, 18 U.S.C. § 1962(d), because, unlike antitrust laws, such 26 conspiracies fall within the type of conduct the statute is meant to prevent. 79 F.3d 776, 787 (9th 27 Cir. 1996). Applying this logic, the Rashdan court concluded that the intracorporate conspiracy 28 doctrine is also inapplicable to a Section 1985 claim, reasoning that [u]nlike antitrust conspiracies, which mainly are directed at the anticompetitive and collaborative efforts of businesses, the conspiracy in a [Section] 1985(3) claim is focused on the discriminatory conduct of the individuals involved. Thus, regardless of whether the defendants were acting as individuals or within the course and scope of their employment, their agreement to deprive another of his or her equal protection rights remains subject to the proscriptions of [Section] 1985(3).

Rashdan, 2011 WL 197957, at *7 (citations omitted). The Court finds this logic persuasive, and therefore concludes that a Section 1985 claim is not necessarily barred by the intracorporate conspiracy doctrine. But here, the claim still fails for the reasons discussed above—i.e., because Plaintiffs have not adequately alleged an underlying constitutional violation, and because they have not included sufficient facts to plausibly allege the existence of a conspiracy.

C. Leave to Amend

“Leave to amend is not automatic upon granting a motion for judgment on the pleadings under Rule 12(c), but it within the Court’s discretion.” Guidiville Rancheria of Cal. v. United States, No. 12-cv-1326 YGR, 2014 WL 3749227, at *3 (N.D. Cal. July 24, 2014) (citation omitted). The same standard applies when considering whether to grant leave to amend after granting a Rule 12(b)(6) motion to dismiss. See id. Thus, leave to amend should be granted if it appears possible that the defects in the complaint could be corrected, particularly where the plaintiff is pro se. Lopez, 203 F.3d at 1130-31. However, leave to amend need not be granted, even to a pro se litigant, where further amendment would be futile. McQuillon v. Schwarzenegger, 269 F.3d 1091, 1099 (9th Cir. 2004). “The district court’s discretion to deny leave to amend is particularly broad where plaintiff has previously amended the complaint.” In re Vantine Corp. Sec. Litig., 283 F.3d 1079, 1097-98 (9th Cir. 2002) (internal quotation marks and citation omitted); see also Telesaurus VPC, LLC v. Power, 623 F.3d 998, 1003 (9th Cir. 2010) (district court may deny a plaintiff leave to amend if the plaintiff had several opportunities to amend its complaint and repeatedly failed to cure the deficiencies). Here, while Plaintiffs have had two opportunities to amend after instruction from the Court in the context of Section 1915 review, this is the first time that the Court has addressed the adequacy of the claims with the benefit of adversarial briefing on a motion to dismiss. Accordingly, the Court will grant Plaintiffs

1 leave to amend their claims to cure the defects discussed in this Order.

2 CONCLUSION

3 For the reasons described above, the Court GRANTS Defendant's motion for judgment on 4 the pleadings. However, the Court will grant Plaintiffs leave to amend the complaint to remedy
5 the defects discussed above. Plaintiffs' Third Amended Complaint ("TAC") is due by January 5, 6 2016. If Plaintiffs fail to file a TAC by that deadline, the Court will dismiss Plaintiffs' claims with 7 prejudice.

8 The Court encourages Plaintiffs to seek free assistance from the Northern District's Pro Se 9 Help Desk, United States Courthouse, San Francisco, 450 Golden Gate Avenue, 15th Floor, Room
10 2796, San Francisco, CA 94102 or the Help Desk at the Oakland Federal Courthouse, 1301 Clay 11 Street, 4th Floor, Room 470S, Oakland, CA 94612. Appointments can be made in person or by 12 calling 415-782-8982.

13 This Order disposes of Docket No. 33.
